Dolly Parton knows the score. In fact, ever since the singer/actress stumbled to the kitchen and poured herself a cup of ambition she has been talking a lot of sense. She nailed the rigours of career progression in the catchy number, 9-5, and grasped just how hard it is to keep up appearances when she said: "It costs a lot of money to look this cheap,". She had a point.

Women have always had a proliferation of products to choose from, but men are finding themselves increasingly confronted by a range we never knew we needed. Men's grooming is big business, but how do we know what's essential and what's worth paying extra for? Luckily, we've got your back. Well, we've got your face, your hair, too, so whether you like to lavish yourself with the best, or grooming is simply a means to an end, here are five match-ups with solutions for both budgets.
